LOCAL TALENT IGNORED.

With an accomplished artist living here who was born and brought up in Hawaii, and whose ability as a portrait painter is generally recognized, it does not seem right that the late Justice McCully's portrait for the walls of our principal court-room should have been given to a foreign artist to paint. It would appear that the Judiciary Department did not have the ordering of the portrait, or the local artist would probably have been given the commission. As the work is paid for out of the public treasury, however, it ought to have been done by direction of the department that pays for it. Mr. Hitchcock with arms supported the Government when it was assailed by sedition, his home is here and he spends his money in this country. Being an efficient artist he ought to have a chance when, on the rare occasions that occur, the country pays for works of art in his line. Criticism of this particular transaction is too late now, it is true, but attention is called to the matter with a view to preventing any similar preference of foreigners to people of this country in the bestowal of national patronage.

Only eight Senators took part in the slaughter of the Advertiser's pet—"The Registration Act"—and the seven just ones who did not imbue their hands in its blood will, doubtless, be nominated for canonization by that journal.

Since the Advertiser has failed to browbeat the Legislature into desisting from the repeal of the obnoxious Registration Act, it remains to be seen whether Sir Oracle will direct his scowling aspect at the President.

Before Senator McCandless gets his wide-tire reform through, the gauge of the legislative railway will have to be widened.

Japanese Found Dead.

The dead body of a Japanese was found at Palama, near the tram terminus, yesterday with a knife sticking in his breast. There were other wounds on the neck and abdomen evidently inflicted by the same instrument. The body was taken to the police station and afterwards identified through Consul-General Shimamura as that of a Japanese who had called on him on Saturday and deposited his ticket and bank-book with the intention of leaving for Japan on the Altmore.

A jury was impaneled this morning by the Coroner and after viewing the body the inquest was adjourned until tomorrow. The authorities hope to determine by further investigation whether the man was murdered or died by his own hands.

ORATION BY WATTERSON.

The Kentucky Journalist at a Banquet in London.

LONDON, May 30. — The dinner given tonight by all of the United States consuls in the United Kingdom to Patrick Collins, the United States consul-general here, was a notable gathering. It was considered a great compliment to an efficient official, and all the American consuls located in Great Britain and Ireland attended. Among those present were Ambassador Bayard and Joseph Pulitzer. An illuminated complimentary address was presented to the consul-general. To the toast "The Guests of the Evening," Mr. Collins made a fitting response.

The speech of the evening was made by Henry Watterson, of Louisville, responding to a toast, "Memorial Day." In fact, it created a sensation. Mr. Watterson began the main portion of his address by replying to the statement by T. P. O'Connor, M. P., in his paper, the Sun, at the time of the Venezuela excitement. In his statement, O'Connor asserted that the South would have to be reckoned with, in case the United States engaged in a foreign war. Mr. Watterson repelled the assertions of Mr. O'Connor, saying that, among those who fought so well and valiantly during the late unpleasantness, as well as among their descendants, there was but one feeling—a feeling of thankfulness that God had laid the weight of his hand upon the Confederacy and preserved the life of the American Union. He said:

"I confess I am a jingo, but from England I learned the lesson and got the cry, 'greatness and glory for England.' It goes without saying and should need no self-seeking flunky eager for social recognition, no resonant lip service delighted to have an audience and rejoicing at the sound of its own voice, to impress the intelligent Englishman with the truth that no true American desires anything but the most cordial relations of friendship. This state of common institutions and of common language is common talk. More than this, it is, in some respects, misleading. Talk of common language did not prevent the United States from going to war with England on two occasions. Talk of common institutions, where conflicting interests were involved, is imaginary rather than real. We are of a common origin and of a common blood, without a doubt, and that means we are good fighters who may be counted each to stand by his own. War would certainly be a terrible alternative, but there are yet greater evils that may overwhelm mankind than war.

"It was the spirit of the Anglo-Saxon race that placed England where she is today. Her warriors are no more forgotten in her history than are her sages. To the same martial spirit, the American union owes what it is today, and upon that idea the United States must rely to maintain her position among the nations of the globe.

"If in recalling the heroic deeds of those whose memory we drink tonight I take leave to hoist our national bunting a little higher than the Duke of York's column; if I also trail it in pious homage before that dome where lie the remains of Wellington and Nelson, I certainly do not mean to beard the lion in his den, nor twist his tail, when I remind Englishmen that we, too, have in Sherman, Lee, Farragut and Stonewall Jackson Anglo-Saxon soldiers and sailors, whom all of the Britons should delight to honor."

Timely Topics

Over the purple profile of the Waianae range the iridescent gleam of the variegated after glow suffuses the western sky. A soft breeze blows over the town, rustling the foliage embowering thousands of verandas. Marsden's bats go forth in quest of beetles, their uncanny wings fanning the whiskers of the "free and independent," as they sit enjoying their post-prandial cigar and meditating on the Registration Act. Bill Williams puts his number tens on the ladder and mounts to his eyrie at the mouth of the peaceful harbor, where, with a Japanese safety match he lights the lantern that warns the mariner against taking the Miowera's overland route into the desired haven. "Let fall the curtain, wheel the sofa round, and so let peaceful evening in."

What a pretty introduction to a novel could be made out of a Honolulu evening! The picture is incomplete, however, without ringing in a handsome parlor lamp. We have your choice of many varieties of hanging lamps in the most artistic styles—silver, bamboo, black iron, porcelain, etc., with elegant shades. If it's "light on the subject" you want, you may just as well have it in style. The prices will not be in your way, you cannot get lower for equal value elsewhere. Don't bother any more with that worn-out lamp, but treat your household to a "thing of beauty" that will shed a nightly glory over your domestic happiness and pleasures.

Some people may have tried to convince you that the monarchy of the oil stove has been abrogated in favor of other inventions. Don't give any countenance to such a notion. The oil stove has kept right ahead with the march of progress, until its improvement has culminated in the Blue Flame Oil Stove that we sell. If we have told any of you that our stock was exhausted and would not be replenished for some little time, we must take it back as we do now gladly. The Monowai agreeably surprised us with a fresh lot, and they are now opened out. None who saw the experiments in cookery performed on this stove in our store recently will need to be informed of its superior merits. Any who did not have that opportunity are welcome to enjoy satisfactory demonstrations of the stove's qualities on application. One thing about us is that we never try to sell goods on the chance that they may give satisfaction. We want our customers to be thoroughly convinced that they are getting value for their money before they part with it. With the full consciousness that our business reputation is at stake, in regard to this as well as to other standard articles that we advertise, we unhesitatingly recommend to you the Blue Flame Oil Stove.

There is no doubt in your mind as to the proper place to get a Good Watch; if the number we have sold during the past week is an indication of the way the wind blows.

You have sometimes been undecided, when swayed by the well intentioned (?) comment of interested ones, that "he's too high" and you invariably found that it was just the opposite. That for a really high grade article you paid much less than you supposed was necessary, that goods were just a shade better, and gave you three shades better satisfaction.

W. W. DIMOND'S

Interest never flags when the goods and prices are right. In May we passed all records in merchandising! Helping more people to goods at less expense than ever—that's the secret! Great movements in merchandise reduce expenses in all directions, freights on carload lots are less than by the piece, buying at the factory means a big saving to us. And you are the gainers.

The Success Filter, as sold by us, means good health to you and money in your purse. The money comes in this way: We bought at the factory a car load of the goods; everything was cheaper and we can sell you a six-gallon filter for $5.50.

The filter stone in a Success filter is made of tripoli stone, mined in Georgia, U. S. A. It is fitted in the upper chamber of the filter and water passes through it, all impurities in the water remaining on the outside. It may be cleaned in a moment and will last for years as it is six inches in thickness, instead of one as in ordinary stone filters.

The quality is the best and $5.50 for a six gallon filter is lower than you ever paid before.
